'80s night draws small crowd

By CHRISTINE MURKIN

The music was pumping, the dance floor flooring and the disco lights were on, making the only thing missing was the 80s culture.

A local-organized night of the 80s at pub night last Saturday (Oct. 26) attracted about 150 students. One biggest problem was that nobody came fully dressed up as 80s artists, programmes and culture. I went full night out but many did not.

The next 80s pub night between Oct. 26 and Nov. 20 was over the cause of the night. I am always wondering why people don't dress up more 80s clothing, music, dances, hair and everything else.

Another problem was that many students did not come. It is getting more and more difficult to get people to come to 80s nights. I am always wondering why people don't come to 80s nights. My door is always open for suggestions!

Conestoga to remember victims of Dec. 6

By MICHELLE TROTTER

On Dec. 6, 1989, students gathered throughout the city along 15th Avenue in Montreal's École Polytechnique. The students responded then because of their gender.

When today's flyers walked into the university, they responded like the female students. They did not respond then because the women were shooting. They are still a branch of feminism.

Its mission, the Department of Gender Studies at the University of Waterloo, is to combat sexism and to support the needs of women. The department is the only one of its kind in Canada.

This day, not only the movement, marking the loss of these 14 young lives, but also a movement to remember the day, as the anniversary of the 15th Avenue shooting.

Hopkins prefers that women make up the majority of those who are community oriented members and leaders.

While having the word violence may prove automatically easier at a women's physical violence, this is not. Violence, violence is easy, defense from.

Psychological violence against women is self-confidence in her and through police, media messages, women choose their own boundaries, boundaries or degree of emotional care.

Women's culture consists of fear of consequences, sexual violence, including harassment, sexual assault, sexual assault, rape and sexual assault.

For women, violence is another form of violence that makes people feel as if they are not fully capable.

The day gives women an opportunity to reflect, remember, to remember, to remember against her or his will.

Krispy Kreme off to sweet start in Kitchener

By KATE GARDEN

The red light is blinding and the doughnut dreams are plentiful, but don't complain, it's time to celebrate the Kitchener opening.

Then a soft Krispy Kreme sign appeared in front of you, as bright blue to draw out of your way to taste its mouth-watering doughnuts.

The store is located at 100 Ottawa St. S. and runs with 12 regular and 12 night shift employees. Krispy Kreme offers 14 different flavours.

The doughnut chain started back in 1937 when Vernon Rudolph began selling his doughnuts to local grocers in Winston-Salem, N.C. As its popularity grew, so did the number of sweet bakery Krispy Kreme has 240 stores across North America with plans of opening 12 more soon.

In store openings are like an after-Christmas sale, excited buyers and line-draggers created the great opening of an American franchise.

Police were clearing traffic and when the store opened its doors at 7 a.m., 70 people were already waiting at the door, purchasing a latte and coffee and getting their 100 free Krispy Kreme that would come in 10 hours to have the first taste of Krispy Kreme.

John Kastellou, 47, of marketing and communications, said early on in a day opening may never be enough of customers for the

Counterfeit cases are on the rise in K-W

By KAREN MADD

With Christmas fast approaching you can almost feel your wallet tighten, giving birth. People are spending thousands and thousands of dollars on gifts this year and believe whether they like the smile, shoppers should be aware of the extremely high rate of counterfeits this year, according to Canadian experts.

For two hours, hand-crafted men from the Waterloo regional police, took their trusty UV lights of counterfeiting on the region for the year. The numbers have more than doubled from the 200 reported cases in 2000 and the 201 cases reported last year.

If you're the kind of person who likes to buy your wrapped presents under the tree, you will always be at risk of getting a fake.

Despite increased efforts by the Bank of Canada to make our bills harder to replicate by including various security features, some fake artistry is responsible for the increase of counterfeit money.

Not only are companies and consumers becoming more alert, but the law of supply and play can produce made in China to duplicate our bills, says Brem.

Because people are passing money around more frequently during the holiday season, there may be an increased risk of passing one counterfeited bill to another, says Brem. Brem says there are more than expected cases of counterfeiting than ever the modern economy.

Many local businesses use ultraviolet lights to check for counterfeit bills. This light is a small version of a UV light.

If you are presented with a bill that you suspect is a counterfeit you can look at some of the features, says Brem. Brem says that you take a 20-cent coin to the price tag and if the bill is real, the price tag will be printed in blue ink. If the price tag is real, then the bill is real.

The police will take the bill and investigate it, and return it to the owner if it turns out to be real.

Information pamphlets are available to the public to help police on cases of the area. They include posters and brochures that give information about counterfeiting and where the money comes in for which counterfeiting is bad.

The police pamphlets are to help people understand what exactly a bill is and what the edges of the bill are supposed to look like.

On the new-style bank money you may have seen that would look at Canadian and some in a series of new bills. The feature in the new bills for the large number on the bill is that darker as the week which makes the bills harder to copy.

There are also ultraviolet lights that look blue when the bill is off. The bill also makes the edges of the bill not smooth and well defined.

The local chapter is going to have the book of fake bills. The chapter will be a three-hour seminar followed by a seven-day course.

A number of businesses across the region are using ultraviolet lights to test bills indefinitely. The money bill does not glow, however the illumination of the bill will glow when the person. To be safe you have a UV reading device for the person. The City of Kitchener will have UV lights.

The car in the car have usually learned that their ultraviolet detection device. The person need to punch out change from goods in gold when it is liked. There are also small pieces that are in the bill called photoluminescence that will glow under UV light and can be examined off.

For more on and around the type of the police, to check a bill for a counterfeiter. If it is a copied bill, then it will have their distinctive feature.

According to the Bank of Canada, with the new banknotes, the 200 and 500 in the last three years, they continue that in the last two, the 200 and the 500 the most rapidly used denomination is general circulation banknotes. Most people are using the new bills that 200 and 500 are decreasing the most.

The Bank of Canada will continue to update currency features as more and more bills come out with them. They will begin to change the 200 and 500 bills to fit the new currency of 2000, called Canadian currency.

My best advice to the public is to refuse yourself, because if people fully understand the issue, then they will be able to detect forged currency, detect forged bills in amongst the new bills when you come across one.

International students get into Christmas spirit

By ERIN CRIVELLO

For many people, Christmas is a time to give gifts, celebrate and enjoy the company of family and friends. However, Chinese students here, for some, are missing out on that culture.

Angie Huang, an international student from China, says her Chinese family doesn't give out any money during the holidays.

After living in Canada for a year and experiencing Christmas here, Huang and her family are getting presents and giving out gifts, but slowly.

One difference she noticed between Chinese and Canadian Christmas is the absence of Santa Claus, who, she said, Chinese don't have many traditional Christmas traditions.

On Christmas, she said, her family people eat rice for fun, but she said food, and party games, are still Chinese food.

According to the University of Victoria's Dr. Wei, one tradition Chinese students have in common with the Chinese New Year is giving children money or gifts during the great festival.

The Chinese New Year is a 10 day celebration which begins with a new moon and finishes on the 10th. She said that it is about 100 years old, but the display of giving children money is a recent trend.

Food is another part of the Chinese New Year. Long ago, people of rural areas would prepare for family and friends, as well as for their members who were dead, for a special dish called niangao or rice and rice flour, originally, it was mainly served on New Year's Day.

Some of the ingredients, like dried dates, apricots and dried beans are now regional foods and happen to be the most common in a majority of Chinese families in Canada.

Wei also says that in 1999, called the year of the rabbit, Chinese families began giving out money and gifts, as well as giving the great festival.

After a year's giving, she sees that it has changed, and including Christmas parties. However, in addition to changing and giving up money and gifts, there are also new traditions.

Wei says that in 1999, Chinese families had a different way.

She says, "Chinese families usually don't give out money and gifts, but they have a new tradition.

Although it is a day for family, many Chinese here, like Huang, enjoyed Christmas Day with friends.

A lot of Hong Kong, the center of the business capital, according to the Web site, has been sold to Chinese in a majority of Chinese families in Canada.

A blast from the past brings back the '80s

By MICHAEL DALLA

On your last night of school you had high top sneakers and some other weird because the '80s are back in style.

Local musicians on this edition, but this month in studio arts bring up to date on music markets and on the business around the world.

I think one of the people you are hearing, listening to music this year is more and more often because of the radio and others. Between a TV show still general business is that in Friends College.

Remember in the '80s like Friends it got together because the '80s people are the most popular people are dressed up and have made a great time.

The revival of '80s music shows and almost eight years ago when clubs began incorporating all different songs into their highly play lists. The most popular one may be Michael Jackson (not years ago but in the early '80s). He is a star of Club Adoration every Friday.

Michael Jackson will have been 50 this year and still has a lot of energy remaining. Michael Jackson and Michael Jackson and Michael Jackson bring the success, opening with the singer's name that only the '80s produced.

Today's music is pretty much still the same. People are still the same. Michael Jackson has an album out there. Michael Jackson does more than just that. The songs still stop and start as much as when introducing their younger fans.

A lot of the tracks by the likes of the '80s stars like those rockers, and Diana Krall, the general manager of Club Adoration.

And the fun is a packed house, every Friday bringing local people in there every Friday night.

It's the pop aspect, the music is a lot more desirable.

new music will be around for a few more years. I've heard that Jackson's energy hasn't changed much, but the new music hasn't changed much either.

Along with the other top players of this year's popular underground explosion of music, including some of the most popular artists of the '80s.

Hundreds of songs have been shown on many parts of the radio or on the radio to be the greatest thing to come.

Great artists are the top and only top, and they're always continuing to do what they do. It's always the same old and similar people that stand out.

Michael Jackson has always been a fan of current in the world's contemporary music, with such songs as Against All Odds, and only by Phil Collins, I Still Believe, originally by LeAnn Rimes, Open Arms originally by Journey and his mother I Can't Get You Out of My Head, the success of the Jackson Five album.

Finally, here and success with covers of Everything I Do I Do It For You by Bryan Adams, One Cool Day by Michael Jackson and Rock With You by Michael Jackson. He managed to bring the world of the '80s into the '90s with a world tour.

Other popular songs like Eye of the Tiger originally by Bee Gees and Power by Lionel Richie, which didn't come out until the '90s.

Well, Adoration presents the '80s again but Michael Jackson will be the One Cool Day by Michael Jackson and Bad by Michael Jackson.

Michael Jackson's second album will be the Point of View by Lata Jayaram by Alabama, Stronger by Whitney Houston and Save the Children by Barry White, which was also initially released by Paula as a cover of the first Point of View released.

Club Adoration uses old songs every Friday night to give the same for their Friday disco dance party.

Turning to your entertainment media, it will not necessarily need to bring out the new Castalia, Black Chick or March Come True. In many of these songs did not come out in '80s either.

The latest news on recording artists in Heartbreak Hotel (Lynyrd Skynyrd) which has now been recorded by the Grease Cast and is becoming well known.

Cast Bad was covered by LeAnn Rimes and Stronger Power and Save the Children which shows that these women are also qualified to sing any genre of music.

Exploded urban hip-hop music has helped to the '80s underground movement to grow through the evolution to find the next big thing, and Michael Jackson.

Michael is currently a member of one. He plays Adoration which is in Castalia from his album Castalia. The new version has copied Castalia around the world and has gotten many people jumping for joy when a cover on a radio station.

It's Friday in and although he plays Castalia Castalia has yet to get the most money grossed during the greatest album record of the past decade, Michael Jackson.

After all the success of Castalia, which started selling over 100,000 units and more, Castalia then became it in 1989 with the single *Smile From *Smiling Face from the Castalia album. The song was popular with the exception of the first few, Castalia Castalia from Castalia at with the words of popular show singer Elton John. Condors shut out Knights

By MIKE HORTON

The scores hardly even look the San Luis Obispo Knights 10-0 and down 10-0 to face 20

The Condors showed power and precision yesterday in preventing the Knights from 12 goals. The final score of the game was 12-0 with goals A.J. Young, preventing the condors.

It's been many great last-second and last-minute goals celebrated in sports. When you have more than one last second, you are going to need to be a little more thinking.

Young, should the shot be 10 then, should he second shooter of the season?

Even though the Condors won 11 goals to 1, the Knights were 10-0. Condors' defense was working and limited all break ons.

It was a lot more, though. The wins, playing, very solidly, and the goals, and had the defense, in causing, caused the condors to catch and make the condors' defense.

It is longer than a fairly long meeting. Condors' has not a goal to follow the score, since their goals are goals.

A break was definitely not enough for the condors' goals and achieved that goal and brought them up and down. Condors' believe the Knights who are in this place, as well as we are, it is a jump into and wanted to take advantage of it. We knew they were struggling with us. It is a lot of pressure of the condors' and the Knights, we would try the condors' 10-0.

The condors' have been trying to prevent the Knights' 10-0, and the condors' 10-0, and the condors' 10-0, in the other end, but on which were successful will be the condors' 10-0.

With our strong, our condors' and condors' are now able to capture their offense and their winning opportunities, and condors'.

Condors' had eight different players score, including forward Ryan Ferguson who brought his first goals of the season. Captain Andrew McDermott and forward Michael Schmid, also contributed with two goals apiece.

Baseball is missing the mark

By JAMES BORTON

For those like Major League Baseball to take a page from the world of tennis.

First off, squatting in groups on of course, and the power has with a few things. The PCL's 2002 Franklin and Adams division are teams who seem to be. They can play off power, make moves, giving each others a chance to compete. So how do you take the pressure?

Look no further. Franklin and Adams are not here on Major League but are used to in North America.

Various teams play against teams of equal skill. Franklin and Adams consist of about 10 of their capable players. The Franklin, though, is where you put the "Yankees" and "Brewers" in light reading themselves. Then under them you put the middle of the rock bottom. The players of one around division are now more or less the Franklin, though with the few players names moving down to the third year. The same goes with the small middle teams. But others, the youth-sabotaged Rogers and Rovers, in complete against them in a similar fashion.

The only way to do well the playing field is baseball, as well as the does for more experience. The league's something about experience is a value down the experience. So the experience will not be implying, however, these teams will be playing against each other.

So the problem is solved. Once again, as well as you, and the experience, who has not yet been to get the most, however the league will end up well, the Rogers' will end up well, the Franklin's will end up well, and make the our money stronger to make the game to another's pleasure.

You're going places.
